MISCELLANEOUS READING. APRIL MEMORIES.

The lilac leaves put forth anew The spring-time's early pledges, The young grass wears its greenest hue Beneath the eaves' broad ledges. The birds flock back to Northern bowers

And fill the air with singing-

The harbingers of early flowers On sunny hill-sides springing. Afar upon the breezy hills The soft blue mist is sleeping, And lo! the unfettered glancing rills To melody are leaping. The bland pure air of spring, replete

With many a sound of gladness, Brings back a yearning deep and sweet, But most akin to sadness. The old time memories come again Like incense round me wreathing-The dropping of the early rain, To odorous zephyrs breathing;

The consciousness of solitude Which strangely seems to cheer me, On which no other might intrude, Though all the world were near me. I wander down the lonely lane, Endeared by memories hallowed; The picture greets my eyes again Which time has only mellowed. The winding footpath is the same,

So still and wild and lonely; All things some old remembrance claim, The change is with me only. Glad springtime, waked to life once more, Oh, in thy resurrection Would that thou could'st again restore The dead hopes of affection; Give back the noble heart, wild wave,

Beneath thy surges sleeping,

Or give to sorrowing hearts dark grave, The treasures thou art keeping. Oh. sudden tears, like April rain, O'er p'easant memories falling; Oh. lips that smile with life again, From far-off uplands calling; Oh! radiant forms, which walk in white Where Eden streams are flowing, When shall I see the morning light

Along my pathway glowing. Ah! sudden from the melting sky The golden gleams are shining, Look up! sad heart and tearful eye, God's purposes divining; Still shines his love the storms above, The clouds His face are hiding, In the broad sunshine of that love Thy lost ones are abiding. E. G. B.

WAGGERY. Some time ago on the Sabbath day, we wended our way to one of our churches, and instead of a sermon heard an address upon some missionary of other benevolent subject. After the address was concluded, two brethren were sent round with a basket for contributions, Parson L ____, who was one of the basket bearers taking the side upon which we sat. Immediately in our front and upon the next seat negligently reclined our friend Bill Htleman of infinite humor and full of dry ket and Bill slowly shook his head. "Come, William, give us something," said the Parson.

"Can't do it," replied Bill. "Why not? Is not the cause a good one." Yes; but I am not able to give anything "Poh! Poh! I know better; you must give me a better reason than that." ·Well, I owe too much money-I must

"But, William, you owe God a larger debt than you owe any one else." "That's true, parson, but then he aint pushing me like the balance of my creditors." The Parson's face got into rather a curious condition, and he passed on. THE PARTNERSHIP existing under the firm of RODGERS & WILLIAMS, is this day dissolved, by mutual consent. GEO. WILLIAMS.
